NOTICE.

PUBLIC attention is drawn to the fact that at the present time many brands of Condensed Milk are being offered for sale bearing labels so nearly representing that of the original 'EAGLE' Brand Milk manufactured solely by BORDEN'S CON-DENSED MILK CO. of New York, as are calculated to deceive the purchasers of the real article. As an additional protection all purchasers of Borden's 'Eagle' Brand are requested to note that every Tin of same bears the Signature of GAIL BORDEN the original manufacturer on the label.
Borden's 'Eagle' Brand Milk has the unenviable reputation of being the Milk par excellence and without a rival in point of view of quality and purity.

Owing to Borden's special and exclusive process of manufacture both their 'Eagle' and 'GOLD SEAL' Brands are specially recommended for use in tropical climates they being guaranteed to keep better than any other Condensed Milk offered to the public.

into this question of Light.

There is no light so good or so cheap as the British-made

WELSBACH

Welsbach Light is the combination of the wonderful Welsbach Kern Gas Burner with Mantles of British manufacture.
Only in this way do you obtain the light that is the lightest, softest and cheapest. There is no other burner, except the Welsbach Kern No. 3, which will give you a 75 candle power light with a gas consumption of only 3 ft. per hour.

Every genuine British-made Welsbach burner and mantle bears the Registered Trade Mark "AUR."

Welsbach Light has been adapted to every conceivable purpose from tiny table lights to the Storm proof Self-Intensifying Lamps of 600 candle Power. It is self-contained, no special mains or clumsy apparatus required.

All who desire more light at less cost, should therefore write for particulars and Catalogues of Welsbach Light, to the Sole Agents in China of the Welsbach Incandescent Gas Light Co., Ltd., London.

MIDNIGHT AND MORNING.
A Sketch of Life in the Great Metropolis.

[BY ARTHUR C. HENDON.]

Big Ben has just struck one, and the morning is an hour old. Westminster is nearly deserted. There are still a few cabs and motor-cars and mayhap an omnibus making for over the water, but before the next half-hour chiming out Whitehall is silent.

What a weird sight this deserted city is!
The thousands of lamps which surround the House of Commons and the massive public buildings close by seem to shine more brilliantly than ever, but they illuminate only the bare, deserted streets.

Towering above this peopleless area stands Big Ben. He must be relieved when this period of peace and quiet arrives. He is monarch of all he surveys, and from his conning tower in the clouds he gazes down at the streets below, so dead, so motionless.

Three o'clock! The last cab has rolled homeward, and Westminster is a City of Silence. Some men are working on the road perhaps, but they make little noise.

Police-men on the beat seek the most convenient doorway, and only at long intervals, when the inspector does his rounds, is their slow, heavy tramp heard. In truth, as we look at these grand lamp-lined streets, Westminster reminds us of a city of the dead.

THE COFFER-STALL.
But there is one spot where there is still life. Outside the great Abbey a small crowd is gathered round a coffee-stall. It is a mixed gathering. The poor beggar who has sold enough matches to buy "a door-stop and a cup" rubs shoulders with the man in evening dress. By the side of the stall stands a young man who keeps up a regular fusillade of witty remarks.

He is shabbily dressed, but he is very merry, and it is not long, before the man in evening dress stands him a cup of coffee. The policeman on the beat tells me that this fellow lives by his tongue. He gets into conversation with the patrons of the stall, and they invariably ask him "to join them." This is good for him and good for the stall-keeper, who rewards him with a packet of cigarettes. And so he exists.

We return to the square; the chiming from Big Ben announces that another half-hour is more "audible" than ever. At length the stillness of the night is broken by a footstep. It is not the labourer going to work; it is too early for him and the step is too light. The pitter-patter on the echoing pavement is too quick for the policeman or the postman. The little feet belong to a wee wee of a girl. She has come over the bridge from the slums on the other side of the water. She turns into Whitehall and faces the wide and solitary thoroughfare. Perchance a miserable being who has been turned off the Embankment seats shuffles past her, but she does not flinch or slacken her rapid little trot. Through Downing-street she cuts, passing No. 10 with mighty indifference into the park, that dark, isolated expanse which looks so dreary—so vast.

THE BATH AND THE BEARD.
The constable on the beat takes little notice of her. She has passed that way at the same time for weeks past, he tells me. She is the child of some poverty-stricken parents who are striving to keep the bodies and souls of their little ones together. With a canvas bag on her little back, this ten-year-old daughter of the slums—who has been forced out into the cold night in order that she may get to the West End, where the clubs, hotels, or bakehouses will sell her bread, trots bravely on. In her tiny hand she grasps tightly a few coppers, and if she arrives at these places by half-past four her bag will be filled up with "stale" and, as the bread is a day old and she gets plenty of it, her little heart gladly performs this early morning task. She knows, too, that others are on the same mission, so she hurries on—she must not be late.

Once again everything is quiet. The only living soul to whom I can talk is the policeman. Instantly seems to tell him that the inspector is on his rounds, and he leaves the doorway that shelters him from wind and cold and perhaps rain, for even in these spring mornings it is very cold.
With measured tread he walks down Parliament-street, mechanically trying gates and locks as he switches his bull's-eye on them.
A few yards ahead of us stands a man, a man so dirty, so poorly clad that his very manhood seems disguised. He is standing and where there are openings for Chinese merchandise.

Suppose, for instance, you are a maker of Pottery; our Clipping Bureau might find in some paper an item saying that a big wholesale Pottery concern was being organized in a certain town—well, of course, would send you that business-news item, and give you a chance to do business with that firm.

We do just the same in any line of business, for there is always something being out that it might pay Chinese merchants to know.

We can supply you with advertisements of all the great American merchants and manufacturers, so that you may assimilate their ideas and improve your business in China the way we do here.

To avoid delay, send ten dollars (Mex.) for one month's trial order. Subsequent rates can be determined according to service.
It won't cost any money to send for our free Book which tells all about our service and how much it costs. Send for it today.

THE SUFFRAGETTE MOVEMENT.

RUDICULE is, perhaps, the most powerful weapon known to publicists. No cause, unless it has inherent merits which render it practically unassailable, can stand against a continued campaign of ridicule. The Suffragette movement at Home has been ridiculed by the press in all parts of the world. Yet, as we learn from "Reuter's" message published yesterday, the agitation is proceeding apparently more strongly than ever. The table in question stated that ten thousand women, many of whom occupy prominent positions, marched in procession and made sufficiently striking speeches.

While we are not altogether convinced of the value of a procession as an argument we are coming round to the opinion that the time is approaching when some definite line of action will have to be taken by the great political parties.

None of them can afford the antagonism of the suffragettes at the next general election, assuming of course that the movement retains and develops its vigilance. It would be impossible to gauge how many votes the women who advanced the noisy argument of the cattle bell at Manchester and Dundee, managed to divert from Mr. Winston Churchill, but the information would be interesting and valuable if it could be obtained. At all events they influenced some and this has filled the politicians with dismay. Even the uncompromising, or, rather, erstwhile uncompromising,

Mr. Asquith has condescended to climb down from his perch of dignity and has set out to placate the voteless ladies.

Mr. Balfour has already given his message to the movement, not, it may be expected, so much because he has any very profound belief in its desirability, but because it has been a useful weapon wherewith to assail the political enemy.

The Labour Party has throughout supported the claims of the women to the vote and the natural gallantry of the Nationalist Party should render their sympathy sure. Thus it would seem that the garrison of the citadel is prepared to haul down their flag and surrender at discretion. A female speaker and lady Members of Parliament may soon be with us. At any rate, if they are, they will add to the picturesqueness of the proceedings if they do not have as much influence on the deliberations of Parliament as the more optimistic suppose.

In the earliest days of Western intercourse with China when mistrust and suspicion born of ignorance and pride of race interpenetrated other Chinese characteristics the lot of the sojourner and stranger in the land was marked with hardship and peril, happily now rare, and in evidence only when special exciting causes are in operation.

Of all non-Chinese who have left their native countries to live in the Far East missionaries were in the worst position to conciliate native feeling and to allay native prejudice. Officials from the West were resident in Consulates in the open ports for well understood reasons; they formed a necessary part of the machinery of Governments in their international relations. Commercial men were in China for reasons equally intelligent and the trading companies—of which the Great East India Company was the head—had prepared the way for commercial enterprises to centre at the coast ports. On these two sections of each Western community and the foreign residents directly related with them the Chinese looked, not with repugnance perhaps, but with less repugnance than on missionaries whose presence could not be understood or accounted for as matter either of political expediency or of trading enterprise. A world of possible conjecture and speculation was opened up and the why and wherefore of the foreign teachers coming and residing was attributed to causes far removed from fact and often most calculated to perplex and disturb. It is significant of the change that has taken place in public opinion, due to the spread of general enlightenment, that a section of the native press, having sympathies by no means unduly favourable to Christian missionaries as the teachers of a foreign religion, is now placing the points of contrast in their services to China when set over against the disservice and injury that are likely to accrue from the advent of Buddhist missionaries of Japanese nationality.

That the influx of priests from Japan into the province of Fukien should be viewed as a danger to the state is not unnatural. Formosa lies opposite the coast line of this province. In the present position in Fu-kien trouble could easily be raised by political emissaries wearing the garb of the priesthood. The modern history of Buddhism in China has in it little or nothing to reassure the Chinese as to the good faith of those officially associated with its doctrine and ritual.

Moreover the appearance of travelling and institutional priests of Japanese origin was in fact and verity the beginning of further trouble between the two nations concerned. This last named fact alone force and emphasis to the protest against the presence in any large scale of a Japanese Buddhist priesthood in the neighbouring province of Kwangtung. In dealing with the question of their coming among the Cantonese as teachers, occasion is taken to point out the probable association of their instruction in Buddhism with matters belonging to a totally different sphere, and it is at this point that the writer is at pains to show the difference between a Christianity no longer under suspicion as to the motives of its promulgators and Buddhism which, coming from Japan, has under considerable doubt and mistrust.

A Seoul correspondent writes that the Emperor-father continues to indulge in subterfuge. Indications show that another intrigue will be exposed shortly.

Owing to the disquietude prevailing once again in the neighbourhood of Seoul, two police expeditions left Seoul on the morning of the 3rd inst.

AN AUSTRALIAN COMMERCIALTRAVELLER'S STORY.

IT is the commercial traveller who finds the many changes of climate and water-trying. Mr. Chas. B. Chapman, who resents a large Brisbane concern, had been

On one of his trips a fellow traveller recom-

EIGHTY YEARS A SOLDIER.

Russian Centenarian's Career.

St. Petersburg, June 7.

Among the objects of interest which the Czar was enabled to exhibit to the royal and distinguished guests assembled at Czarskoe Selo for the Swedish wedding was one that must surely be without a parallel. This was a veteran soldier, who entered the army in 1797 (sic) and served as a soldier for eighty years. He was a gow man when Napoleon invaded Russia; he was personally known to General Kutsoff, and was serving in the days of St. Beloff, who also showed him personal marks of his favour. Michael Budnikoff is now 128 years old, still active, and hears fairly well, and lives on his own farm, being a moderately well-to-do peasant, with the rank of "retired sergeant," in receipt from various special funds of a pension amounting to £120 a year. Three years ago a lottery ticket of his came up to prize of £500, and it was accordingly to collect this money that the old soldier travelled from the province of Tver to St. Petersburg. He has the "For Valour" medals of St. George of all the classes of distinction he won in the course of his army service, besides two medals for saving life.

BABY IN AGONY FOR SIX MONTHS

Torturing Eczema Covered Head, Face, Neck, and Arms—Parents were in Despair, Fearing His Death or Lifelong Suffering—Condition was Pitiful—Baffled Treatment.

CURED IN THREE DAYS BY CUTICURA OINTMENT

"My little son's eczema started when he was seven weeks old, his head, face, shoulders, neck, and arms suddenly becoming covered with a red, itching, and burning eruption. Just this way one day he was in a great deal of pain, and did his best to scratch himself without avail. The child's condition went from bad to worse, the affected parts becoming more and more inflamed, and he was a pitiable sight, crying nearly all the time, and quite exhausting himself in his efforts to allay his torturing skin by rubbing and scratching. We were almost despairing, thinking it meant either death or lifelong suffering, but Cuticura Ointment was at last applied, and within a few hours Mrs. Cooper said she noticed a change for the better. After three days' treatment it was quite apparent that a complete cure had been effected. In a week his skin was perfectly clear. Really, I should never have believed it if I had not seen it myself. This was two years ago and my child has never had the slightest return of any skin irritation, and is now the perfect picture of health. I cannot too strongly express my gratitude for what the wonderful Ointment has done for us. I am only too pleased to show the child to any one who calls to verify this marvelous cure. William Cooper, 240, Murchison Rd., Leyton, London, N.E., July 4, 1907."
